

Highlight

Market is still strong

The U.S. stock market managed to edge up modestly for the month of May. Again, the two central nagging issues relating to inflation and recession have not faded away. Going forward, we think U.S. stock market will continue to perform well as unemployment rates remain relatively low and the market P/E ratio is relatively sustainable.

Bitcoin

Bitcoin has taken quite a bit of beating recently. We still think that Bitcoin may face more headwinds from regulators. In addition, the stabilization of U.S. banking industry may put downward pressure on Bitcoin.

China

The Chinese market has not performed well lately due to economic slowdown. However, we think Chinese economy will eventually recover, however it will take relatively long.

Energy Prices

Energy prices are expected to remain strong with more OPEC members cutting supplies due to expected slower demand. The higher energy prices will definitely hinder economic growth.

• Investment Thesis

We still like U.S. equities due to their global and international business presence. Some U.S. equities are currently trading at compelling valuation. In addition to U.S. equities, we like technology and life science sectors due to their future potential growth and more importantly they are trading at very compelling price.

We are still positive on China. However, it will take time for China to recover due to its property market crisis.
